

SHIP IGNORES PLEA OF AIR CASTAWAYS BUT FOOD

Food supplies lasted five days. Rain water caught in fabric torn from the wings of the seaplane saved their lives, the men said.

Hear Radio Say All Hope for Finding Them Is Gone

A small still, which Commander Rodgers' mother insisted that he carry, was pressed into service and used between rains to provide water. Portions of the ribs of the seaplane wings were burned under the spot where the still was operated. The craft was able to pick up radio messages, but not able to broadcast.

"The worst part of the drifting period," said Commander John Rodgers, "was when we were able to hear messages put on the air saying that hope of finding us had been given up."

Found fifteen miles northwest of Nawiliwili, approximately 450 miles from the spot where they were forced down, the submarine which located them sent food aboard and radioed the news.

In tow of a number of launches approaching the island, the connecting line snapped and the seaplane drifted onto a coral reef, but it was pulled off, heeled, and the crew was landed.

The rescued men then unfolded their story of nine days drifting, after which they discussed plans for towing the damaged plane to Pearl Harbor today.

Residents of the Islands gave the rescued men continued cheers as they were brought ashore.

Under Commander Rodgers' direction were Lieutenant Byron, a Cornell of Pittsburgh, Pa., assistant pilot; Miller, N. Pope of Jackson, Tenn., as observer; William B. Hewitt of Richmond, Ind., aviation chief machinist's mate, and Ollis G. Stutz of Terre Haute, Ind., chief radio man.

Refuse to Quit Plane Until She Is Safely Anchored

The seaplane landed at 11 p. m. for four days.

Three hours after it was towed into the harbor by a tug, the aircraft dropped anchor and small boats went to her assistance.

The anchorage line of the aircraft then broke and it drifted into the breakers near a coral reef. Attempts were made to take the crew off, but Commander Rodgers and his crew refused to leave until the plane was towed to a safe anchorage.

When the happy crew was brought ashore, the men were taken to a Lithuan hotel, where doctors inspected them. Commander Rodgers, the first man to leave the plane, thereby insulating one of the Navy's oldest traditions, was ordered to bed.

All the men were haggard, looking thin and weary. The strain which they had been under for nine days. They were heavily bearded, their faces were tanned by the tropical sun.

NO FOOD FOR 4 DAYS.

The wings of the seaplane were badly smashed by the waves, but the hull was intact.

Food and water were exhausted on the fifth day after the plane was forced into the sea by lack of fuel.

The men, therefore, were without the brave little force in every sense except officially had been given up as lost mariners to man's efforts to overcome the elements.

Since the big plane reported that gasoline supply was gone and stranding was feared in an emergency landing in the equally water, it had drifted approximately 150 miles from the point where it was forced down.

"The P.N. No. 1 was forced down just north of the point where the Hawaiian Archipelago is reckoned, less than 300 miles from shore. The fliers experienced no trouble in landing, they said.

After her wings were clipped by the exhaustion of her gasoline supply the plane, wind-driven on the face of the water, made progress slower than calculations of the searching navy had indicated.

It was sighted at a position where the flotilla of naval craft had cruised last Saturday, near that in which the mine sweeper Whipple reported two days after.

The big navy plane, which was forced down, was seen working its way to its destination, was captured by Commander John Rodgers, veteran flier of the navy, and naval forces, who learned to fly as pupil of the Wright Brothers at Dayton, O., four years ago.

Because of his skill and experience he was named as the skipper of the flight. The P.N. No. 1 was the flight commander of the three craft originally intended to hop off together from San Francisco to Hawaii.

HONOLULU WILD IN JOY.

News of the safety of the plane, which had carried the burden of five men ashore more than nine days on an alien element, caused a scene of rejoicing among the people of Honolulu and the men and officers of the fleet, after his visit to Australia and New Zealand and his participation in the celebration at the time of the centennial of the Navy.

At a Honolulu hotel, where numerous dinner parties were being attended by the Navy, the news was announced. Since all had been home only a few days, the news was greeted with a "Hallelujah" and a hundred or more guests gathered in the pines of Thanksgiving.

"Vote We Were All Lost Made Me Angry"

Navigator Connell said that the fliers picked up radio messages at sea before the rescue. From the U. S. S. Langley, saying that at a conference of twenty-one pilots it was unanimously agreed that the P.N. No. 1 and its crew were lost.

"That made me angry," he said. Commander Rodgers' handling of the disabled plane was highly praised by all members of the crew. Rodgers expressed the belief that it would be necessary to give their hypocrites to swim them so that they could

2100-MILE TRIP SET NON-STOP SEA MARK

Longest Trip of Atlantic Fliers

1,350 Miles; Last Radio

Was Warning

San Francisco, Sept. 11 (I.N.S.)—The 2100-mile non-stop flight from San Francisco to Hawaii, in which the crew of the P.N. No. 1, nearly lost their lives, was one of the most remarkable in the history of aviation.

It is the last great step to be taken in the conquest of the ocean. Captain Moore declared the day the first plane took off from San Francisco Bay.

No such expedition of trackless seas has ever been crossed in a non-stop flight before. The longest single hop, made by the Atlantic fliers in 1919, was 1,350 miles.

P.N. No. 1 CRIPPLED.

Sunday, August 23, was the first day San Francisco actually met the three plane team, P.N. No. 1, P.N. No. 2 and P.N. No. 3, originally scheduled to make the epic flight.

On the very eve of the flight, the P.N. No. 1 was still in the shops at Crissy Field by the Golden Gate. It was first intended to leave her behind.

September 1, the two P.N. planes, supposed to leave on September 1, the P.N. No. 1 got off first, at 2:48 p. m. Rodgers in his P.N. No. 1.

By the time the first great ship was passed, 200 miles off shore, Rodgers had no more fuel.

He was weak and over-tired, the destroyer Whipple was 100 miles further on. When an oil field of his name broke through was found after an all-night search by the William Jones and towed back to San Francisco.

RODGERS LAST RADIO.

Rodgers, however, kept on going. At 4:19 p. m. Rodgers, September 3, he passed the night guard ship, the Arctostol, 1,600 miles from the Golden Gate, and 300 miles from Honolulu. Rudyard, like a bolt from the sky, came to the rescue.

"Am running low on gas. Keep close track, please," was the message radiated from Commander Rodgers.

At 4:15 o'clock that same afternoon, September 3, the P.N. No. 1 was forced to land. Rodgers was heard of her until last night, nine days later.

Grandfather of Rodgers

Once Commanded Here

Commander John Rodgers, skipper of the P.N. No. 1, known throughout the Navy as "Jang," is a member of a family that has been closely associated with the naval forces of the United States for generations.

His father, Rear Admiral John A. Rodgers, retired after a life of service in the Navy and now lives at his home at Haverd, of Grace, Md.

Where he received tidings of his son being found.

His great-grandfather, Commander John Rodgers, was a commodore at the Boston Navy Yard from 1868 to 1883. John Rodgers, his great-grandfather, served in the Navy during the War of 1812.

Commander Rodgers himself has had as much if not more experience in naval aviation than any man in the service. Graduating from the Naval Academy in 1905, he applied for aviation, then in an experimental stage. Shortly after being assigned, Commander Rodgers sustained a bad fall while working with a mail-flying kite.

He has commanded the Naval Air Base at Pensacola and at Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands, giving up the latter post last May to become command of the Wright, the flagship of the air forces of the academy.

After the Navy after being detailed to take command of the flight to Hawaii.

Lucky Fish Didn't Do His Hopping

Soon Enough

Honolulu, Sept. 11.—Nine days of buffeting about on shark-infested seas was not sufficient to rob the heavily laden board the P.N. No. 1 of their sense of humor.

When a big mullet fish jumped into the boat as it was being towed ashore, Radio Operator Stutz picked it up and said:

"Big boy, if you had only done that two days ago, you would not have lasted long."

hand, maintains his former attitude that no investigation will be necessary, as the navy has nothing to concern. Arthur Secretary Davis in his conclusions recites that Colonel Mitchell should be disciplined under military law for the attack he made on the aviation policy of the army and navy administrations.

He also contends there is need to determine whether the allegations made by Colonel Mitchell are true or false, the same being true in regard to the charges against the navy and army administrations.

He advises an inquiry be made to determine whether the proposed plan for providing unified air service would be better for national defense than the present system under the army and navy organizations.

Mr. Davis contends that Colonel Mitchell violated service regulations and the articles of war in making public his charges of air inefficiency, yet a court-martial on this phase would have no connection with the truth or falsity of his charges.

He also feels that the charges made against the war department, alleging inefficiency in the air service, must demand a complete investigation by some agency outside the organization, and the same theory holds true of the allegations made against the navy department.

It is his contention that the unification of the air service is a policy demanding legislation, and this should be thrashed out by Congress, inasmuch as it affects vitally the national defense.

Interest of the administration, since the arrival of Mr. Coolidge in Washington has been so centered in this controversy that it is felt the President will no longer insist, but will take some immediate action.

GEN. THEFT

Washington, Sept. 11 (A.P.)—The naval seaplane P.N. 1 will attempt a flight from San Francisco to Hawaii next after September 21.

Captain Stanford E. Moore, commander of the flight project, advised the Navy Department today that the flight would take place after conclusion of the equinoctial storms of the Pacific.

He reported that successful tests had been made with the plane, whose flight to Hawaii had been postponed indefinitely to permit continuation on the search for the P.N. 1.

The P.N. 1 on a recent test took off with a load of 1,500 gallons of gasoline, 715 gallons more than the P.N. 2, No. 1 carried, and regarded as sufficient for the trip to the islands.

These are not toys, but honest-to-goodness automobiles, of three of the best-known American makes. They would make three families very, very happy. And the price is within the reach of all.

Two cents apiece!

WHY do you read the Boston Evening American? Why is this newspaper your first choice at the news stand or for the hands of the newsboy, day after day, week in and week out, just as it is the first choice of at least 250,000 other New Englanders?

The question is asked by the editor, who really wants to know.

HOW TO GET AUTO.

And here is how you may have one of the Boston Evening American's three motor cars for only two cents:

Write a letter, of not more than 250 words, on the subject, "WHY I like the Boston Evening American." Send that letter to "Mr. Packard Buick Essex," in care of the Boston Evening American, No. 5 Witherspoon square, Boston, Mass.

Be yourself. Write as you would talk. Give details. Name the things

In the Boston Evening American you would not like to go without. Tell what you get from the Evening American, what you like best in it, what encouragement you receive from it, what it has done for you.

That said! First choice of the three automobiles—Packard, Buick and Essex—will go to the writer of the letter deemed by the judges to be the most helpful of all that are received.

Choice of the two cars remaining will be the high privilege of the writer whose letter is considered to be the most helpful of all that are received.

And the third car will become the property of the 1 cent—of the writer of the letter the judges mark next in order of merit.

OPEN TO ALL.

But, remember this: Not one of these cars will move from this door until the winning letter-writer has paid 2 cents in cash for it. No checks.

For want of a better word we are calling this competition a "contest," and being a contest it simply must have rules. Therefore, a very few rules.

First, the competition is open to everybody who resides where the Boston Evening American is on sale every day. No age limit, in either direction.

The only persons barred from participation are employees of the Boston Evening American and allied publications, together with the members of their families.

Secondly, letters on "WHY I like the Boston Evening American" must be written on one side of the paper. They may be printed, typewritten, pencilled or pen-and-inked, but do write plainly and bear in mind that neatness may be one of the things observed and duly considered by the judges.

Air at making your letter HELPFUL as possible.

The situation is this: The Boston Evening American, as everyone knows, is on sale every day.

ATLANTIC CITY RIOT OVER PAGEANT

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 11.—A scene of disorder was enacted on the Garden Pier where the intercity beauties were gathered to be judged in their evening gowns. One man was beaten, one was knocked down and three were arrested after police reserves were called.

The trouble started when Earl Carruth, the Broadway producer, took the stage and told the audience that Milton Crandall, manager of "Miss Pittsburgh" and "Miss Essex" had threatened to sue more make-up charges against a certain New York actress in the beauty contest.

Carruth declared if these charges were made that the Crandall beauties would be disqualified. Crandall, who was in a tuxedo box, stood up and shouted to Carruth on the stage: "Let me answer your assertion!" Twenty-five hundred persons in the audience were started. Carruth refused to answer.

How her step-father, Henry Godat, brought with his partner, $60 to 1,200 cases of liquor a week over the Canadian border to the tune of annual profit of $75,000 or $100 a case last year, was testified to yesterday in Suffolk Probate Court by 35-year-old Ida Godat, his step-daughter, at the hearing before Judge McCollo of her mother's, Mrs. Fannie Godat's, petition against him for separate support.

Mrs. Godat brought her petition for separate support in 1919 and it is only now being heard. She married Godat eleven years ago, this being her second marriage. She alleges cruel and abusive treatment. She contends he is or has been a bootlegger on a large scale and has $200,000 tucked away. His earnings from Egypt some years ago. His wife is an American.

She contends he used at first to import liquor from Canada across the border, but now brings it by boatload from St. Pierre and Cuba.

Captain Williams in endorsing his nomination, among them being Colonel William J. Keefe, United States Marshal at Boston.

SURPRISE BY CONNERY. The nomination was the chief feature of the day's session, but following it a close second was the unexpected speech of Congressman William F. Connery of Lynn, who violated his physician's orders by leaving a New Hampshire resort to attend the convention.

Congressman Connery, himself a veteran, attacked the United States Senate for its failure to pass the Johnson Bill, and declared the Legislature must demonstrate the fact that they wanted "no more nominees."

Robert J. White, of Watertown, chairman of the legislative committee, in his report warned the Legislature that another drive is in force against the veterans' preference act. He told them not to be misled by malicious reports that veterans themselves are against the bill.

"It is not customary," said Congressman Connery, "for members of the House to criticize the Senate, but there is no rule against it when the criticism is not made from the floor of the House."

EMULATES GILLET. "Congressman Gillet did it and caused a furor about two years ago in the Senate."

I am going to again risk their displeasure and criticize them because I think it is necessary, although this is the only time that I have ever criticized the Senate in public. I refer to the Senate action on the Johnson Bill.

"As a member of the World War Veterans' Committee I did everything possible to put this bill through, to take care of disabled men. The bill passed the House without a dissenting vote but was defeated in the Senate."

"We, in Congress, have done all we can. It is now up to you men to bring pressure to bear on your Senators and to make them thoroughly realize that we don't want any more nominees from the Senate."

BLAMES CONFERRERS. "The trouble lies with the conferees who, when they got through with picking the Johnson Bill to place left nothing but the name of the bill."

"You men have got to show that the executive men are actually back of your disabled buddies."

Connery then charged the Senate and made them come across. Senator Walsh fought for you, but was powerless against the others. Unless you continually fight for the disabled veterans, they are going to be forgotten."

"During the fight over the adjusted compensation act all you could hear was 'We are willing to help the disabled veterans, but not the men who came through O. K. who are able to take care of themselves.'"

HITS "GOLD-BRICKERS." "Now that the adjusted compensation act is settled they have forgotten these disabled veterans whom they were so anxious to help."

"You will hear many complaints against able-bodied men who are receiving compensation while a really disabled man is receiving nothing. These gold-brickers exist, but not nearly so great a number as they would have us believe. There are not enough of them to go round and you can forget them for they are being taken care of as they are being discovered. Devote our every effort to seeing that the worthy disabled veterans get what is coming to him or her. I warn you he will be forgotten."

Commander Harlow, in calling the session to order, announced that because of the heat it would be good form for the delegates to remove their coats and vests.

The following committee stated for the first time in the history of the Legion the Massachusetts Department arrived at the convention with all bills paid and a sufficient balance in the bank to meet any emergency up to January 1, 1925.

THIRTEEN TO LOGGE. An impressive feature of the session was a tribute paid to the memory of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, when the delegates stood silent for thirty seconds. Senator Lodge was characterized as one of the Legion's most valued and faithful friends.

Considerable opposition was expressed to a proposed amendment to the State Department's constitution, authorizing the State body to revoke or suspend the license of any member who in the State for conduct detrimental to the American Legion, subject to the approval of the National body. The measure provided that notice in writing be given the post affected one month ahead, in order that it might be given an opportunity to reply to the charges.

Despite the opposition this measure was carried by a two-thirds vote.

TO HEAR DRAIN TONIGHT. A message of special meeting informed that National Commander James A. Drain would not arrive until this afternoon.

In consequence a special meeting was arranged for 8:15 tonight at Ford Hall, at which he will deliver an address.

A message of regret was also received from Watson B. Miller, chairman of the Rehabilitation Committee, who reported that some of work in Washington would prevent him from being present.

At two o'clock the delegates and their women folk were scheduled for a harbor sail and champagne at Nantasket. There was to be a baseball game between teams from the Legion and "40 to 8," together with a program of sports.

At seven o'clock tonight the delegates were to visit the carnival at Faneuil Hall and at 8:15 will be guests of William Fox at the presentation of the screen version of Channing Pollock's stage success, "The Fool," at Tremont Temple.

PARADE TONIGHT. The big event of the night will be the street parade of the "40 and 8" followed by an initiation at North Audubon, Warren Avenue and Berkeley Avenue.

Tomorrow morning comes the election of officers, with the big parade in which 10,000 veterans are scheduled to take part in the afternoon.

The parade will be reviewed by the navy officials and there will be prizes for the best band, greatest number of Legionnaires in line, the most traveling the greatest distance and the best costumes.

Sheriff Doubts His Alibi for Night W. C. T. U. Leader Was Shot

Vinton, Ia., Sept. 11 (A.P.)—C. R. Cook, whose wife, Myrtle Cook, president of the Boston County W. C. T. U., was shot to death in her home Monday night, was to be questioned at a closed session of the coroner's inquest today.

This was announced shortly before the inquest was resumed. Sheriff Whitefield Ruhl said that Cook had not given a satisfactory explanation as to where he was the night of the shooting.

The coroner's jury also is scheduled to hear, behind closed doors, the testimony of Charley Percival, a day laborer, who Sheriff Ruhl said, had made vague, threatening statements while in a drunken condition last Monday.

GEST TO BRING 'THE MIRACLE' TO BOSTON

Makes Announcement of Premier Oct. 26 at Patron's Meeting

Boston will see "The Miracle" when announcement was made by Morris Gest on his arrival, refreshed and tanned from a summer in Europe, to meet luncheon day newspaper men of Boston and outline the plans for the engagement.

Mr. Gest's decision to bring "The Miracle" here carries with it the announcement that the Boston Opera House will be the New England home of the world's most stupendous spectacle, and the premiere is now set for Monday, October 26, for an engagement of five weeks.

Boston will be the first city in the Eastern States aside New York, to see the production that brought Max Reinhardt, for the first time to this country, that gave world wide fame to Lady Elina, Madame as the Madonna, that entailed a cost of over $200,000, the peak of production costs in the world's history, that ran for ten months at the Century Theatre, New York, to over a million attendance.

In bringing "The Miracle" to Boston," said Mr. Gest, "I am doing something that I have dared to do before. I am bringing 'The Miracle' here on my own responsibility. I hope to have a representative company of Boston citizens, connoisseurs of art and music and the theatre, who will serve as patrons of this tremendous venture. But there will be no guarantee fund, as there has been in other cities.

The Boston engagement of "The Miracle" will follow that in Cincinnati after one week's interval, due to the tremendous mechanical problems of dismantling the cathedral in Music Hall in the Ohio River metropolis and transporting it here and setting it up in the Boston Opera House.

The latter structure will be closed six weeks prior to the premiere in order to make ready for the construction work when the production arrives on special trains from the west.

The leading roles will be played here by those who created them in New York and Cleveland. Lady Elina Manners, the English society leader, will be seen here. And Mr. Gest premieres Boston the Honorable Mrs. Tree, daughter of the late Sir Herbert Tree, in the role of the Nun.

BROUGHT TO LIGHT THE SEAS QUEEREST FISH—Amazing creatures never before held by human eyes, dredged up by Frolov—Tribes of New Bedford on his expedition to find the Sargasso Sea legendary home of lost ships and strange animals. Told in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. With interesting pictures.

MEDAL URGED FOR BLIND BOY HERO OF 12

Marshfield Youth Rescued a Woman Drowning in Turbulent River

What constitutes a hero? The good people of Marshfield think that whatever it is, George Damon has set it. George is a twelve-year-old blind boy, who did not prevent him from saving the life of the drowned North River on August 25, and saving the life of Mrs. H. B. Burgess, a Somerset visitor at Humarock Beach, by selecting, they are preparing to bring his name to the attention of those who said and the Carnegie journals for heroism every year and will they are confident the claim of the little blind boy will be recognized. Young Damon lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Damon, on Elm street, Marshfield. He attends the Perkins Institute for the Blind in Watertown. One eye is sightless. With the other he can when it is daylight and when it is dark and that is all.

On August 24 Mrs. Burgess, a weak swimmer, got caught in the current and had gone down once when she began to swim. George, a poor swimmer himself, ran to a boat moored on the beach, paddled out with one oar, hoisted her by sound, swam her by the side and dragged her in. As he coasted to land, a distance of some 200 feet, he was roundly cheered by the crowd, which had gathered too late to help him.

Young Damon's sense of touch and his sense of hearing are abnormally developed. He can kick a football fifty yards and find it by listening for the thud and the sound when it drops. He helps his father, who is a fisherman, during the summer vacation and can dig as many clams as a fully-grown clam digger. George means to be a musician. He has learned several instruments and has a good ear. And he is rather shy of the upsurge he caused when he rescued what a blind kid can do when he has to.

HUNT HUSBAND, GRILL WIFE, IN SLAYING

Wilmington Woman Is to Be Asked if Spouse Jealous of Boarder-Victim

Jealousy and the eternal triangle are seen as motives by the police of William James, chauffeur, whose body was found in a well at the rear of his home on Borden avenue, Wilmington.

The law seeks Frank Johnson for questioning. He was the star boarder in the house occupied by the victim and his wife.

Today Mrs. James faces a grilling at the hands of District Attorney Arthur C. Harding of 35 Blithmont and State Inspectors Sherlock and O'Neil. So far she has only stated that she saw the two men leave the house together by the back door, walk in the direction of the well where the gruesome find was made, from which walk her husband never returned.

WIFE SILENT.

She will be questioned at length on whether or not her husband was jealous of Johnson, and whether or not there had been a quarrel between the two. She has told questioners that the two men appeared to be on friendly terms.

She was asked why she had not reported her husband's failure to appear until two days had elapsed, and said that it was nothing unusual for him to go off for several days without any explanation. It was the complaint of neighbors of an odor from the well that led to the finding of the body.

Palmer Lucas, brother-in-law of James, will also be closely questioned today. He had been accused to pick up James and John, son, each morning and drive them to their work in Lowell.

"Hot Pads" 33c BEAUTIFUL, useful, and a great value!

City Hall

by Henry L. Daily

GLANCING over the radiations of the street commission was asked. The street commission is too busy to take a vacation this year, was his reply.

HAVE you seen Councilor "Dave" Brodley's new hat? It's a dandy. Those "in the know" placed several bets as to what shade the new skyline resembled. Bird's eye magic won the pool.

B'VEN away on your vacation yet? Chairman Tom Hixley is still pointing over the fact that on the first of next month they will have to appear in a uniform. Free of such a regulation since the war, they wished to remain so. The City Council, however, agreed with Dr. Francis X. Maloney, health commissioner, and uniform it is.

CHARLES L. CARR, new chairman of the Finance Commission, was a member of the old Board of Aldermen with Mayor Curley. He also served with "Mar" Nichols as a member of the Common Council. Strange how some things come about.

CITY CENSOR JOHN M. CAREY and his wife are spending their vacation at Savannah, Georgia. Assistant City Censor Joseph Mikolajski has received a postal card in which the city censor says they had a splendid trip.

THE artistic design work of J. Philip O'Connell, director of Public Celebrations, never has been displayed to better advantage than the two framed letters of appreciation that were presented to Miss Eva Morrison and Miss Irene Heganis. In the upper left hand corner is a picture of Mayor Curley, lower left has a golden key of the city, tied with red, white and blue ribbon. The two girls recently completed a swim in Boston Light. Miss Heganis was the winner.

TOO FUNNY FOR HIS LOVING MIDGE AT LAST—Black eyes, undertaker's wagon and a police patrol were jokes she could laugh at, but when comical "Timmy" told it with sauciness—well, that could "diddle" Wilson's romance. One of the most interesting of all feature stories in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. With new pictures of Frank, Midge and the "dogs."

HUB TEACHER SECRET BRIDE

Miss Ethel M. Lane, a teacher in the elementary schools of East Boston, resigning her position today, revealed that she had been since September 2, 1924, the wife of Lawrence P. Quinn, a young automobile dealer of Pullen, N. Y.

They were married in Nachus, N. H., by the Rev. Matthew Creamer, rector of St. Patrick's Church.

During her teaching, the bride cut short her honeymoon and returned to the classroom without taking her associates into her confidence.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Lane of No. 24 Marion street, East Boston. Her father is a letter carrier. Mr. Quinn formerly lived in Lawrence.

CHARGE MAN SOLD WATER FOR ALCOHOL

Two hundred gallons of water sold at $4 a gallon under the guise of alcohol isn't a legal transaction in any league. Therefore, Salvatore Rocco, alias Tom O'Terry of Pearl street, Dorchester, and Sixth street, South Boston, was arrested today by Patrolmen Goodman and Graham of the East Boston street station.

Rocco is alleged to have sold the spurious "alcohol" for $500 to a Waltham man, who became quite upset over it and complained to the police. The Waltham police asked Boston to arrest Rocco and hold him, which was done today. Rocco runs a store in South Boston and claims to live at the Dorchester address.

FURNISHING THE HOME!
It is a mistake that people, very often, make when they begin to furnish their homes. They buy here and there, and in the end, they find that they have no plan, no scheme, no idea of what they want. They buy what they see, and they buy what they like, and they buy what they can get for the least money. The result is a home that is a jumble of odds and ends, a home that is not a home at all. But if you buy your furniture and fixtures from Taylor's, you will find that you have a plan, a scheme, an idea of what you want. You will find that you have a home that is a home at all.

PLEASANT ST. PAVING FUND PUZZLES MALDEN

The problem of the Pleasant street paving fund is puzzling Malden. Three years ago the city appropriated money for repaving Main, Perry and Pleasant streets. Main and Perry streets were paved, but the bond issue was not sufficient to pave the whole of Pleasant street, so the fund, said to amount to about $60,000, remains in the bank drawing interest at a small rate, while the city pays more than double that rate in interest on the bonds. Votes to increase the bond issue are lacking and the project to pave a part of the street has been killed. Every time any improvement is contemplated, the aldermen urge that the money be taken from the Pleasant street fund, and just as regularly as such orders come up they are killed in the City Council.

UNDER THE STATE HOUSE DOME

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

THE State constabulary, whose total strength is but 140, continues to appeal strongly to young men, despite the comparatively small pay that goes with the position. More than 4,000 applications are on file in the State House. The turnover is about 30 per cent a year. For the first three months the salary is $50 a month and found, $15 a month for the next three months and $30 for the succeeding eighteen months of the two-year enlistment.

MRS. MARGUERITE M. MULLEN of Everett is receiving for the turning out of 750,000 pairs of plates. Prison made goods will be displayed for the first time at the Brockton fair during the week of September 23. None of the articles will be for sale. One official declared: "Many people think our prisoners do no work. This will show them that they do work and the kinds of things they make." Eighty-two per cent of all goods manufactured are used by the State and the municipalities. The surplus, which the department is allowed to sell to the trade, has divided from 54 per cent, ten years ago, to 35 per cent at the present time.

Great crowds have been listening nightly to the expositions of Catholic faith by David Goldstein, Mrs. Martha Moore Avery and their assistants. Strangers from many lands were in the crowds. Within a week a distinguished Catholic from Canada has been in Boston observing the methods of the autumn campaigners and marking their results.

COOLIDGE FOR PUBLICITY ON BIG PROBLEMS

President to Take Up Mitchell Case, French Debt and 'Dry' Question Soon

Washington, Sept. 11.—President Coolidge, with fresh vigor, is in Washington today prepared to grapple with a group of vexing problems pressing upon him for solution. Chief of these is the case of "Fighting" Billy Mitchell, destined to be court-martialed because of his grave charges that rank incompetence and criminal negligence of old guard military chiefs were responsible for the Shennandoah disaster and other tragedies of the air.

President Coolidge has little confidence that the War Department will dispose of the Mitchell case without dropping into his lap the fate of the fighting colonel. It tripped his plans on Muscle Shoals, forced him to accept responsibility for Mitchell's demotion, put the Armistice Day—Fourth of July problem up to him for decision, and jockeyed him into the necessity of handling national appropriations (much desired by national guardsmen for their annual tours of duty).

WANTS OPEN FRONT. President Coolidge wants the investigation of Mitchell to be thorough and unprejudiced. He is not disposed to let it rest upon mere military technicalities contrived to get rid of Mitchell while dodging the major issue of whether negligence caused the death of the fourteen aviators and the loss of the dirigible.

He is likely to receive from the War Department at tomorrow's Cabinet meeting the first detailed statement of a plan of procedure in the case. If the plan is satisfactory, he will keep his hands off it. If not, he will order the War Department to "go through" clean.

PROHIBITION SHAKE-UP. The enforcement of prohibition and the general shake-up of the enforcement forces throughout the country, is another of the problems in which he will interest himself. En route from Swampscott to Washington, the President discussed the coming senatorial political battle with Senator Wm. J. M. Butler of Massachusetts, chief man of the Republican National Committee. Butler advised the President that he is making active plans for a tour of the western insurgent States.

12-Minute Periods for School Football Is Favored by O'Brien

Dr. Edward J. O'Brien, Jr., president of the National Football Association, who succeeds A. M. Langford of Trinity, on the football advisory rules committee, in discussing football, announced his highest approval of the latest recommendation of the rules committee. That recommendation, which has yet to be put into effect, is to limit all high school games to 12-minute periods.

"The importance of this change is stressed too much," said Dr. O'Brien. "The serious consequences of this change, however, to the game, are not stressed enough. It is a change which, through long experience during the season, has been found to be a most important one. On Saturday, they are going to limit the game to 12-minute periods. The game is being played, whereas the game has been played but 1000 times during the season into a whiff of air."

"The Boston high schools have practically adopted the short period system owing to the insistence of the Young association of athletes, and the president, Dr. Thomas F. Harrington."

"I hope that this recommendation will become an arbitrary thing in the schools."

RICK-OFF MOVED BACK.

Dr. O'Brien also explained those of the new rules for 1925 which will be of most interest to football fans. The change which will be most apparent to the onlooker is the moving of the kickoff back to the 35-yard line, where it formerly was, though it still must be kicked without the assistance of a kick tee.

Kicking off from midfield showed up the game completely, as the kick in fact was over the goal line, leaving a long run. It is also largely a matter of the kicking back of the game, one of the most important parts of the game. With the kick coming back to the 35-yard mark, the kick should be turned to the game, and the game should be up.

The penalty for clipping has been standardized. Formerly a 15-yard penalty might be taken either from the spot where the clip was, or from the spot of the play. Sometimes it was possible for a team to make 15 or 20 yards on a clipping penalty. The penalty is now 15 yards from the spot where the clip took place.

Dr. O'Brien expressed approval of the new rule in regard to the blocked kick. It has been a long time since the blocked kick has given the side a "down." This was possible to a fourth down and any number of yards to go, to have a part block and obtain a first down by it.

"This is obviously unfair to the defense," said Dr. O'Brien, "for they have made a real accomplishment in blocking the kick, only to have it turned to the advantage of the offense."

Now a recovered blocked kick will rest another down, or on fourth down will give the ball to the opponents. Also any kick which crosses the line of scrimmage may be touched by either the defense or offense and still go into play. Deceiving the player who touched the ball was very difficult for an official.

Another rule, the importance of which is stressed by Dr. O'Brien, is the permission of 15 yards in the playing field during a game without causing a penalty to the side which is the offense. This, in the event of injury to a player, the doctor or referee was forced to attend to, or a referee's attention and judgment before he could get on the field. Now he may report to the referee the same way, and a player may then attend to the injury.

FAVORS TIME PERIODS

Dr. O'Brien was asked the question: "What do you think of the recent action in favor of having a certain number of plays per period, instead of having the period measured by a certain amount of time?" In spite of the fact he answered, "I think there is some merit to this suggestion. I was right up to the point of saying that I am by no means converted to the idea of a 12-minute period, but I am inclined to favor a new arrangement for it."

It is with the sincere regret which I always feel over the fading of some good old institution that I here chronicle the passing of Mr. Leo Flynn, who as the leading producer of scrambled cars in the United States.

He has been recognized by a Philadelphia, Mr. Max Rod Rod Hoff, who is comparatively a new comer to the scrambling game, but who came in with capital and immediately established a record in the scrambling game. He is the producer of scrambled cars in a vast scale.

Damon Runyon

The latest market reports indicate that Mr. Max Rod Rod Hoff's output exceeds that of Mr. Flynn by several hundred cars a year, and a number of scrambling business men are expected to turn in large orders for his scrambling cars in the future.

MR. MAX ROD ROD HOFF has a reputation for being a fast manager of scrambling cars, which is regarded as a record in the scrambling game. He is the producer of scrambled cars in a vast scale.

Mr. Leo Flynn, who cannot be reached for comment, is a scrambling car producer in a vast scale. He is the producer of scrambled cars in a vast scale.

THE rise and decline of the house of Flynn is one of the interesting chapters of the business of scrambling cars. For some years Mr. Flynn played his scrambled cars in town halls and opera houses up in the hills of New England, and everybody who saw Mr. Flynn's handwork agreed that they were the best scrambled cars they had ever witnessed.

Thus the fame of Mr. Flynn spread, and the raw material of scrambled cars began to be in demand. He found that the scrambling cars were in demand in a big way.

FROM his humble beginning in New England Mr. Flynn rose to the domination of the scrambling car industry and now it is said that he has been won through the streets.

Eagle Scream as Doctors Put O. K. on Veteran Wingman

By BILL CONSIDINE

Eddie Harrison, veteran Boston College wingman, will be able to play for the Eagles this fall. Eddie was reported as seriously injured and unable to compete in action again by Major Cavanaugh, after the Brooklyn boy had been hurt last November.

Eddie recovered up during the off season and secured the doctor's permission to report for practice yesterday afternoon at the Heights. The doctor's order demanded that the B. C. boy submit to an examination after the practice and Harrison's fate depends upon the result of this medical examination.

The addition of Harrison, if it is finally determined to allow him to play, will give the Eagles a first class letterman for the entire season. Harrison was a star at Boston College, where he was a member of the varsity team. He was also a member of the college team which won the national championship in 1922.

Plenty of aerial dirt was given to the spectators yesterday at Alumni Field. Four events in all were being drilled up and down the gridiron. Joe McKenney, regular quarterback for the past two years, called the signals for the first eleven, with Edw. McKenna as the second and Billy Cronin as the third.

The first new arrival in addition to the Boston Flash, had Owen Murphy at left half back, Edw. Cronin at right half back, and Joe Cronin at full back. Previous to the signal drill, Murphy and Cronin punched their way to the front line by every yard.

At the close of the workout, Cavanaugh formed the team and made the boys take off their shoes for a sprint from one end of the field to the other. Twenty-three men lined up at the farther end of the field and at the Major's signal started off to give their first work out Tuesday afternoon.

Saugus Plays Sept. 26

ELKS HOLD SWAY AT TEEPE TODAY

By FRED C. LANE

All the setting and pomp of an opening day will be served Boston today at Braves Field today. In addition to playing a double-header with the Phillies the Braves will join hands with the Benevolent Order of Elks in making "Elks Old Ironsides Day" a success.

Services and a dinner accompanied by a naval band lead by Commander Naval Admiral Dwyer and staff will open the ceremonies with a parade to the flag pole where a banner bearing the inscription "As Elks in every school room will save Old Ironsides" is to be hung in the breeze.

Between the games the officers of the Winthrop Lodge will hold the Elks ritual and memorial service for Tony Hoekel, former third baseman of the Tribe, who died two years ago. All members of the Elks of both teams are to be given a representative while non-members will be presented with chips.

The occasion closes up as the biggest happening at the Type since Gautreaux Day. At the present time the Braves are traveling at a fast clip and have Boston fans turning in on numbers to witness their actions on the diamond.

EHMK MAY TOLL FOR SOX TODAY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—Joe Fohl and his Red Sox are here for their last two games of the year. Single games are to be played this afternoon and tomorrow, and Manager Harris has three burles for the pair of engagements.

Charles Haffrich, who was caught by the Senators here last week, may seek revenge tomorrow. The heavy of the Red Sox over the Braves on Wednesday was a close call and demonstrate that Fohl's men are not to be trifled with. Manager Griffith has set aside Friday as "Ladies Day" and they will pick the stands the afternoon. With such a crowd of the fair sex looking on, it goes without saying that both teams will trot their best stuff.

Alan Helffrich, American champion half miler, returned from the Maine woods yesterday to complete his training for the future.

Half-mile race to be held next day evening at the Yankee Stadium, as the feature of the Knight of Columbus track meet.

Helffrich went direct to Travers Island, the summer home of the New York Athletic Club, where he expects to put himself in the best possible condition for his race against Paul Martin of Switzerland, champion middle distance runner of Europe, George Marsters, international champion; Pius Soder, metropolitan champion; John Holden, runner-up in the national championship; and Willie Sullivan, former metropolitan champion.

U.S. Air Catastrophe Climax of Appalling Record

Destruction of the Shenandoah, with loss of fourteen lives, formed a dramatic climax to a succession of aviation disasters that calls for an earnest search to fix responsibility and eliminate the cause.

From 1919 to 1924, inclusive, 366 Army air service men have been killed in flight. Here is the tragic record by years: In 1919, 121 killed; 1920, 63 killed; 1921, 69 killed; 1922, 48 killed; 1923, 41 killed; 1924, 34 killed.

If seventeen fatalities from 1908 to 1918 are added, not taking into account the war years, the Army total is 383.

Since 1921, when the Bureau of Aeronautics was established, the Navy had lost eighty-six gallant fliers, and this number now must be added FOURTEEN more—a present total of 100. No statement of the total deaths in flying prior to 1921 can be obtained from the Navy Department; the story is buried in the records of the various bureaus.

Forty-seven of the Navy's total of 100 deaths since 1921 are classified as due to experimental work. The Army declines to state how many of its fatalities were due to experiments.

Both Army and Navy rightly hold that fliers killed in experimental work are martyrs who offered their lives to aid in development of the science and art of aviation. The question is, how many of them were martyred needlessly, how many of them might still be alive, giving further brilliant aid to the evolution of our air service, had the higher command been entrusted to men with both scientific and practical knowledge of flying?

If the United States had kept a position in the forefront of aviation, that might be held up as compensation. But the price has been paid and America lags far behind.

Out of this intolerable situation there should come correction. Not only the fearless Mitchell, but other Army and Navy fliers who can throw light on it must be given free opportunity to speak in a comprehensive inquiry. To add living martyrs to the dead is not the way to progress in conquest of the air and the building up of an effective air force.

For Young Gentlemen That Bet

Do you bet on the races sometimes, using your "sound judgment," or "past performances," reading utterly worthless tips or merely guessing?

If so, you know something about bookmakers—the individuals that are allowed to violate the laws which forbid gambling, because it suits a few rich men to amuse themselves with race horses.

And since you know something about bookmakers, you will be interested in the fact, as shown by the income tax returns, that bookmakers, describing themselves as "speculators," paid very large sums in income tax.

The Government, asking no questions, takes the income tax from the bookmakers—it has no way for the big sums that these "speculator" gentlemen pay. That money is taken in just as the Government takes in money from bootleggers whose income tax runs up to $1,000,000.

You young gentlemen that bet on the races and are interested in what the Government pays in income tax, HOW MUCH DID RACING CONTRIBUTE TO YOUR INCOME TAX?

Did YOU send any money to the Government based on your large winnings from the race track?

It is easy to guess the answer to THAT question.

Other gentlemen that also paid big income tax to the Government have incomes based on horse race gambling in another way.

Those income tax payers are the men that sell tips on the races.

They sell the tips to the young geese that bet. But the tipsters know better than to bet their own money. They know what tips are worth.

BOOKMAKERS have income tax to pay; they make money from the foolish gamblers. Owners of the race tracks have income tax to pay. They make money out of the foolish gamblers that build up racing. The tipsters, selling worthless information to fools willing to pay for it, have income tax to pay. THEY make their money out of the foolish bettors.

But what about you young gentlemen that do the BETTING, you that fatten the bookmakers' pockets, keep the horse race tracks going for the amusement of a few rich men, and put money into the pockets of the tipsters?

Did YOU make any money out of racing? No, you DIDN'T.

Did YOU have any income tax to pay, thanks to your race track gambling? NO, YOU DIDN'T.

You wanted TIME thinking about racing, guessing about horses, listening to foolish tips, studying meaningless "past performances."

You wasted money, that if SAVED, might have given you a chance in life.

Read the income tax returns of the bookmakers, and think it over, young gentlemen.

More Dogs Than Sheep

"What Fools These Mortals Be"

M. A. T aylor, national authority on livestock financing, says the nation needs more small herds of cattle. Production of livestock on a gigantic scale becomes more and more difficult and unprofitable.

The nation also needs more small flocks of sheep. To see a community with more dogs than sheep is a comment on public intelligence. Sheep keep down weeds, "bring up" farms, feed and clothe the people.

Dogs gratify the vanity of human beings craving something to look up to and lick their hands.

O, You Lucky Number

MEDBURY SAYS--

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the worst pests in the world is the 5 o'clock caller. He's the fellow who makes all his social visits at dinner time.

HE brings you a dollar box of candy and then eats three dollars' worth of food.

HE has a self-starting gait and an automatic appetite.

HE'S been calling on people for six years and has never been in the parlor again. He walks from the front door right into the dining room.

HE doesn't believe in left hand turns.

HE usually carries a can of beans in his pocket. In case there's nothing on the table that he likes.

HE'S been very easy to please. He's had the same can of beans for twelve years.

HE'S only been in a restaurant once in his life and that was when the steward wheel on his automobile broke.

HE doesn't have to patronize cafes so long as he has friends whose door bells are working.

HE called on some people one night and they wouldn't answer.

the bell so he went and got a police man. Three knockers knocking on the front door.

HE was too stingy to go out and buy a meal. A friend of his said he was so tight he must have been born in a straight-jacket.

HE carries four watches with only one number on the dial. 5 o'clock.

HE'S always on the dot. People in the neighborhood set their time pieces by him.

HE'S completely bald and uses the top of his head for a sun dial.

HE almost breaks his neck the other evening trying to look at the time.

HE senses are very keen. He can be down in Greenwich Village and smell a dinner party up in the Bronx.

HE'S nose even figures out the address.

And fifteen minutes later he's at your front door verifying it.

THESE'S plenty of stuff on the market to kill snuff, decay flies, and do away with mosquitoes, but what we need most is something that will exterminate dinner pests.

THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters Must Not Contain More Than Two Hundred Words. No Anonymous Communications Will Be Considered.

Postoffice Deficit

To the Friend of the People:

I see by the newspapers that the postoffice department of the government has deficits which are alarming.

May I just say a word about the postoffice department in the Philippines where I spent thirteen years? There all government employees paid their own postage.

Could not something be done like this here? The Philippines never had a deficit in this particular. I believe that C. M. Cottenham, who was at one time a director of the postal service there, could throw light on this subject. He is now in Boston.

DWIGHT J. JACOBS, Captain J. A. OPPERMAN, 13th Infantry.

A Musical Dog

To the Friend of the People:

With my dog I have made a discovery which may be of service to others.

I am assuming that it is a true. He is a setter and at times will not obey. I have the hardest time making him come when I call him. A friend of mine told me to get a mouth organ and when I called him to follow it up with a little music.

I laughed at the idea and then thought I would try it. I found it worked. The animal likes music and all attention is paid to me, as long as I play.

EDDIE P. GRAHAM, Waltham Heights.

Display the Flag

To the Friend of the People:

Please make me through your column about the hanging of the American flag as a wall.

The attorney-general says, "When the flag is displayed either horizontally or vertically, against the wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right is to the observer's left."

Is this right? I have been taught differently and that is the reason for asking this question.

DWIGHT J. JACOBS, Waltham, Mass.

For Better Understanding

To the Friend of the People:

The letter of Miss Whitney in the Friend of the People, urging a community house in our city and town, ought to become a reality in every city and town.

A community within the boundaries of California recently established a center of moving picture balls, dancing pavilions, etc., through their own free labor; the weather folk living far off from the outskirts of the town showed eagerness to contribute their money in furthering such enterprises.

Tourists Attend Church

Summer visitors are paying more attention to church services on Sundays in the Cape Cod district. Never before during my stay on the Cape have I noticed such a gratifying response from strangers. This should be made known as other results are often paralleled before the public.

RAY, W. H. HAVEN, Pastor of the Methodist Church, Chatham, Mass.

Teach Radio in Schools

To the Friend of the People:

Within ten years radio will be so advanced that radio moving pictures will enter millions of homes. This is the what I gathered from a lecture on this subject given by a professor at a summer school. Such a program should encourage the coming generation to get better acquainted with the up-to-date data about radio.

I think that radio and its principles should be taught in public schools. A. M. HARTWELL, Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

Barbers Deep Thinkers

To the Friend of the People:

The barber, disgusted with his limited possibilities in his trade, turning surreptitiously with his prospects and going to High School for higher branches of knowledge to guide him in life for better chances, is a real sage.

Barbers generally are great thinkers and are great teachers. Cutting hair or shaving must give them opportunities to speculate over the future. They meet so many different types of people and, having them more or less under their control, they get a liberal education.

JOHN D. STRONG, Summer street, Malden.

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

To the Friend of the People:

Some people are saying that prohibition does not prohibit. Probably, it has not worked in some communities, but let me state that the John Thompson Mission, Pawtucket, Rhode Island, has closed its doors because there are no drunks to treat. I understand that the Dover street mission, Boston, has changed some of its plans because prohibition has been working in that place.

Let us keep our ears to the ground.

REV. JOSEPH MITCHELL, Boston.

THE WORLD IS FULL OF MANY THINGS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE world is full of friends to those who show themselves friendly.

There are plenty of enemies in the world for those who adopt a hostile attitude.

The world is full of gentlemen and ladies to a man who will be a gentleman and a woman who will be a lady; otherwise, there is a great dearth of well-bred people.

The world is full of beauty for those who love beauty and are looking for it.

The world is full of kind and good people toward us when our hearts are kind and good. To those who are cruel and evil all men are hypocrites and frauds.

The world is full of evidences that things are getting better all the time to those who are endeavoring to improve themselves. To those who make no endeavor, but let themselves go and call it self-expression, there is nothing true but pessimism.

The world is full of bravery, honesty and gentility to all of those who are brave and honest and gentle.

The world is full of opportunities for those who are alert and quick to seize them.

The world is full of people anxious to help us so long as we show that we help ourselves.

The world is full of people who are willing to lend us money if they think we don't need it. They cannot do such a thing, however, if we are really in need. That would be encouraging poverty.

The world is full of causes for wars and quarrels and contentions of all kinds for those who have the disposition to look for such things.

The world has plenty of air for everybody to breathe, water for everybody to drink and food for everybody to eat. The only place where there is famine is where there is imperfect distribution.

The world is full of little children looking for companionship and guidance.

The world is full of evidences of good and prospects of betterment for all those who have something to do and are doing it. It is a pretty bad place for idlers.

The world is full of love for those who are loving.

Altogether the world is so full of a number of things that we ought, I am sure, to be happy as kings.

MOVEMENTS OF SMALL METEORITES

By Garrett P. Service
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

HABIT is a letter from a man who has had an experience well calculated to excite the envy of scientific observers, and indeed of any who are not tired in the presence of nature's most surprising doings.

"I thought you might be interested to know that on the morning of the 10th day of December, 1914, about 20 minutes to 6 a. m., I saw a large ball of fire, and that it passed within 50 feet of me, and my truck took it as it passed. I saw and No. 486 North Jackson street, Frankfort, Ind. I had the same on evidence of Rush & Widen's new place, and there were about 1,000 people to see it. This piece weighed 200 pounds, and it had a gray in color and when the light shone on it it glowed. I can give you the exact time and what I dug out of the ground."

"J. B. MARK."

I advise Mr. Omar to report his experience to the Field Museum in Chicago, or to the University of Chicago. It is worth putting on official record and examination by experts may show that his method of seeing interesting characteristics.

If I am assuming that it is a meteorite, and that his story is not the same truth (which I do not doubt), but also that the "piece" he dug up is really the meteorite, and that in the circumstances of the case, might have been present without attracting the attention of the public.

There are many details associated with the fall of meteorites which he fails to mention, and which, in the circumstances of the case, might have been present without attracting the attention of the public.

Seen Before Fall

Thus, almost always, the projectile is seen before its fall or its disappearance, shooting across the sky like a long-range rocket, or more or less horizontally. Frequently an evanescent train of luminous smoke, or sparks, is left in its track, and often there is a violent explosion preceding the fall, accompanied with loud sounds.

In the relatively few instances in which people happen to be close to the place where the meteorite strikes the earth, so that it can be approached immediately after the fall, it is found to be more or less heated—an inevitable consequence of its swift rush through the air.

Falling first into orbit around the earth, they would gradually be drawn into paths intersecting the earth.

Others have supposed that the place of origin was the earth itself in some prehistoric age of tremendous volcanic explosions. Another hypothesis ascribes the meteorites to the destruction of a large asteroid—the asteroids being the ring of small planets circling around the sun.

Some have ascribed their origin to the debris of the pure iron ones—the meteorites being the iron ore from other stars, like Sirius.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaeils

TODAY is not marked on the calendar with a crimson line as a shining star, and to many, no doubt, it has slipped away in the placid mode of a commonplace day. But glad tidings reign in the House Next Door where Baby was toddled across the floor. For Baby is marching all the place with her tumble curls and her dimpled nose, and so, when she travelled the long way from her abode in the table, it is the day for the House Next Door with a shining light that never shall pass through the long years. Their glances glowed like a golden star on this day, unmarked in the calendar, for Baby's first step wakened. Joy a score in the hearts of all in the House Next Door!
